

Kunal. Dharmaji. Bhor

Assistant Professor

As an ambitious Assistant Professor of Economics with a passion for academia and a dedication to student success, I am committed to contributing to the advancement of higher education. With a Master's degree in Economics and hands-on experience in course development, student mentorship, and curriculum review, I strive to foster an environment that encourages intellectual growth and practical application of knowledge. My objective is to integrate innovative teaching methods, maintain academic excellence, and prepare students to become thought leaders in their respective fields. I am keen on embracing the challenges and opportunities in higher education to not only educate but also inspire the next generation of economists.
